Parents who punished their fibbing children by washing their mouths out with soap may have been onto something.

Researchers at the University of Michigan found that people who lie have the urge to wash their "dirty" mouths afterwards, apparently in an effort to wipe themselves clean of their bad behavior.

"Not only do people want to clean after a dirty deed, they want to clean the specific body part involved," study author Norbert Schwarz, a psychologist at the university's Institute for Social Research, said in a statement.

Schwarz and co-author Spike W.S. Lee asked 87 students to pretend they were lawyers who were competing with an imaginary coworker, "Chris," for a promotion. They were told to picture finding an important document Chris had misplaced. If they gave it back to him, it would help his career and harm theirs.

Participants were instructed to send Chris an e-mail or leave him a voicemail message in which they either told him the truth -- that they'd discovered the lost report -- or lied to him, saying they couldn't find the missing paper.

The subjects then had to rate how much they wanted certain products, including mouthwash and hand sanitizer, and what they were willing to pay for them. They were told the items were the focus of a market research survey.

The students who had lied on the phone felt a stronger desire for mouthwash and were willing to pay more for it than those who hadn't told the truth over e-mail, the authors said. But those who lied over e-mail had a greater wish for hand sanitizer and were willing to pay more for it than those who'd fibbed on the phone, according to the research.

Those who had been truthful had less of an urge to buy either product.

In other words, the scientists concluded, verbal lies compelled the liars to want to buy mouthwash; lying with their hands by typing an untruthful e-mail made them more drawn to hand sanitizer.

"The references to 'dirty hands' or 'dirty mouths' in everyday language suggest that people think about abstract issues of moral purity in terms of more concrete experiences with physical purity," Lee, a Michigan doctoral candidate in psychology, said in a statement.

University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist Dr. Christos Ballas told AOL Health that the compulsion to buy hand sanitizer may have been for another reason entirely.

"The preference for hand sanitizer may well be related to the fact that they were typing on someone else's computer keyboard," he joked.
He said the scientists should have examined whether the cleaning products had any impact on the liars’ future behavior.

"An even better study to conduct would be whether the availability of mouthwash/sanitizer reduces 'guilt' feelings, or makes it more likely they'll lie the next time," Ballas said.

In the end, he believes the findings, which appear in the October issue of Psychological Science, tell us more about the relationship between language and our subconscious than they do about the desire to wash ourselves clean of our sins.

"We interpret this as 'lies make you feel dirty.' And so the resultant mouthwash makes sense," said Ballas. "But this is a purely semantic relationship. What if lies made you feel ... small? Would you reach for platform shoes? Thus, the real insight here wouldn't be that lies make us feel dirty, but that our unconscious is entirely dependent on our language."

More on Lying:
The Liars in Our Lives
Is She Lying? Eye Detection Better Than Polygraph, Study Says

Related Articles

From Aol Health
Open-Mouth Laughs Are Contagious
Nov 18 2010 4:17PM

Brain Region Linked to Introspection Identified
Sep 17 2010 4:24PM

Firm Handshake May Signal Longer Life
Sep 15 2010 4:04PM

Bathroom Spies Say Americans Wash Hands More Since Swine Flu
Sep 14 2010 4:04PM

From Our Partners
Family Brings Fresh Water to Undeveloped Countries
Aol News – Dec 28 2010 9:01PM

Melissa Gilbert Talks Teen Drug Abuse and Why She’s Worried About Miley Cyrus
ParentDish – Dec 16 2010 5:30PM

Successful People Are Nicer to Those Who May Be Jealous of Them
Lemondrop – Dec 9 2010 3:00PM

Kids These Days Are Horrible, Foul-Mouthed Little People
Lemondrop – Dec 3 2010 3:00PM

Related Videos

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

2011’s Skin Cream Picks

Cure Erectile Dysfunction
Never Worry Again, Find The Best Treatment For You. Compare Options JustClickLocal.com

$65/Hr Job - 25 Openings
Part-Time job ($20-$65/hr). Requirements: Home Internet Access
Channel11NewsReport.com/Money

Buy a link here

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

SPONSORED LINKS

2011's Skin Cream Picks

Cure Erectile Dysfunction
Never Worry Again, Find The Best Treatment For You. Compare Options JustClickLocal.com

$65/Hr Job - 25 Openings
Part-Time job ($20-$65/hr). Requirements: Home Internet Access
Channel11NewsReport.com/Money

Buy a link here

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

SPONSORED LINKS

2011's Skin Cream Picks

Cure Erectile Dysfunction
Never Worry Again, Find The Best Treatment For You. Compare Options JustClickLocal.com

$65/Hr Job - 25 Openings
Part-Time job ($20-$65/hr). Requirements: Home Internet Access
Channel11NewsReport.com/Money

Buy a link here

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

SPONSORED LINKS

2011's Skin Cream Picks

Cure Erectile Dysfunction
Never Worry Again, Find The Best Treatment For You. Compare Options JustClickLocal.com

$65/Hr Job - 25 Openings
Part-Time job ($20-$65/hr). Requirements: Home Internet Access
Channel11NewsReport.com/Money

Buy a link here

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

Related Articles

From Aol Health
Open-Mouth Laughs Are Contagious
Nov 18 2010 4:17PM

Brain Region Linked to Introspection Identified
Sep 17 2010 4:24PM

Firm Handshake May Signal Longer Life
Sep 15 2010 4:04PM

Bathroom Spies Say Americans Wash Hands More Since Swine Flu
Sep 14 2010 4:04PM

From Our Partners
Family Brings Fresh Water to Undeveloped Countries
Aol News – Dec 28 2010 9:01PM

Melissa Gilbert Talks Teen Drug Abuse and Why She’s Worried About Miley Cyrus
ParentDish – Dec 16 2010 5:30PM

Successful People Are Nicer to Those Who May Be Jealous of Them
Lemondrop – Dec 9 2010 3:00PM

Kids These Days Are Horrible, Foul-Mouthed Little People
Lemondrop – Dec 3 2010 3:00PM

Related Videos

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

SPONSORED LINKS

2011's Skin Cream Picks

Cure Erectile Dysfunction
Never Worry Again, Find The Best Treatment For You. Compare Options JustClickLocal.com

$65/Hr Job - 25 Openings
Part-Time job ($20-$65/hr). Requirements: Home Internet Access
Channel11NewsReport.com/Money

Buy a link here

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know

Related Articles

From Aol Health
Open-Mouth Laughs Are Contagious
Nov 18 2010 4:17PM

Brain Region Linked to Introspection Identified
Sep 17 2010 4:24PM

Firm Handshake May Signal Longer Life
Sep 15 2010 4:04PM

Bathroom Spies Say Americans Wash Hands More Since Swine Flu
Sep 14 2010 4:04PM

From Our Partners
Family Brings Fresh Water to Undeveloped Countries
Aol News – Dec 28 2010 9:01PM

Melissa Gilbert Talks Teen Drug Abuse and Why She’s Worried About Miley Cyrus
ParentDish – Dec 16 2010 5:30PM

Successful People Are Nicer to Those Who May Be Jealous of Them
Lemondrop – Dec 9 2010 3:00PM

Kids These Days Are Horrible, Foul-Mouthed Little People
Lemondrop – Dec 3 2010 3:00PM

Related Videos

Parents Worry Where Kids are Learning About Sex, Study Says
Rep. Gabrielle Giffords Can Move Arms, Breathe On Her Own
CDC Report Finds 8% of Americans Have Asthma
Taking Short Breaks From Sitting May Help Waistline and Heart
Your Dog May Be Smarter Than You Know